Background

Creative Europe Desk MEDIA Office Croatia and Artkino Rijeka, in cooperation with Kids Regio initiative and Creative Europe MEDIA Desks, organize a two-day conference “Children & Youth – The Importance of Dedicated Spaces” to take place in Rijeka, Croatia and online on September 17 and 18, 2020.

Anticipating the opening of the Children's House in Rijeka, Croatia, we would like to address the existing shortage of spaces dedicated to European film especially for the young audience, evident throughout all of Europe – in small as well as in big countries. Through a series of round tables and chat rooms for sharing success stories and different practices, we would like to tackle a fruitful discussion and encourage networking among different stakeholders and participants.

The aim of the conference is to highlight the importance and different ways of providing high quality film content and film education for the young audiences. By making it available and giving children and young audiences opportunities to explore and challenge themselves, we are helping them in developing their own sensibility to perceive things, people, situations and emotions.

Christopher P. Marcich

CEO/Croatian AV Centre/ Croatia

Christopher P. Marcich has a Master of Arts degree from Georgetown University. He spent sixteen years working in the U.S. Government on international trade issues as a negotiator and shaping U.S. trade policy. When he left the Government in 1995, he was the Assistant U.S. Trade Representative for Europe, responsible for trade relations with the region. Chris joined the MPA in 1995. From 1995 through 2014 he served as President in charge of MPA's regional office for Europe, the Middle East, and Africa.

From January 2015, he became responsible for coordination of the MPA's international offices (EMEA, Asia-Pacific, Canada, Brazil & Mexico). He has been President of the Board of AGICOA, the association of audiovisual producers and their collective rights management groups since 2013. Chris was appointed CEO of the Croatian AV Centre (HAVC) on 1 May 2019.

The Croatian Audiovisual Centre is the Government-backed strategic agency for the audiovisual sector in Croatia. It aims to stimulate a successful, vibrant audiovisual industry as well as to promote the widest possible enjoyment and understanding of audiovisual works throughout Croatia. It was founded in 2008 as a result of the new Law on Audiovisual Activities unanimously passed by the Croatian Parliament in July 2007. It is funded by the grant-in-aid from the Government and through contributions of all those using audiovisual works, such as broadcasters, digital, cable and satellite operators, Internet providers, telecoms, etc.

Jürgen Biesinger

Producer/ European Film Awards & EFA Young Audience Award

After studying German Philology, Philosophy and Sociology in Cologne, Jürgen worked from 1996 to 2000 as assistant theatre director and theatre director before switching to the film industry in 2001.

He teamed up with the Berlin based film production company Egoli Tossell Film until 2005. Since 2006, he has been an executive producer of the European Film Awards and since 2008 managing director of Berlin based EFA Productions GmbH, the in-house production company of the European Film Academy. He has also been executive producer of the EFA Young Audience Award since its launch in 2012.

With this Young Audience Award dedicated to films addressing 12 to 14-year-olds, EFA is reaching out directly to this audience group and is giving it an active role in European film culture. On the last Sunday in April, three nominated films are screened (as original version subtitled in 30 languages) in cinemas and – as new feature online in virtual cinemas – across Europe to more than 3,000 teenagers who serve as one big, pan-European jury.

Slobodanka Mišković

Director of Art-kino Rijeka/Croatia

Slobodanka Mišković has a BA degree in Sociology from the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences in Zagreb. Since 2008, she has actively participated in the Art-kino initiative, coordinating its establishment while continuously managing its operation to this day. In 2009, she coordinated the development and implementation of the Agreement on Strengthening Local Film Capacities between Croatian AV Centre and City of Rijeka, which ensured joint co-financing of short and medium-length films.

Since 2014, she has acted as the director of Art-kino, a public cultural institution. That same year she participated in the foundation of Croatian Independent Cinema Network, and remained a member of a Steering Committee of the Network until 2018. She has participated in preparation and implementation of Rijeka 2020 - European Capital of Culture project from the very beginning.

Children's House is a new venue in former industrial complex Benčić in the very city centre that is going to be mixture between cultural and educational centre, production centre and experimental hub for kids. It is led by three cultural institutions (CITY PUPPET THEATRE, CITY LIBRARY, ART-KINO) that are already deeply committed to art education. Children's House will try to equip children with the analytical and practical skills to understand and apply language of arts. Its programme will integrate many forms of arts and creative expression- film, performance, visual arts, music and in a close connection with new media and new technologies.

Leopold Grün

Vision Kino Berlin/Germany

© Erika Borbely-Hansen

Leopold Grün is the new managing director of Vision Kino. He is a teacher, social pedagogue and media consultant. From 1996 to 2017 he was responsible for the media education department at Freiwillige Selbstkontrolle Fernsehen (FSF - a self-regulatory body for TV-content). At the end of the 1990s, he made his first works as a documentary filmmaker. The Red Elvis (2007) and At the End of the Milky Way (2013) were shown at international festivals and in the cinema. Most recently he was managing director of AG Verleih, the German association of independent film distributors.

Vision Kino aims at elevating the perception of film as a cultural and art good among children and young people, as well as developing awareness of cinema as both a place of experience and education. The long-term aim is to enhance the skills needed to decipher moving pictures and foster greater knowledge of film and its traditions in order to develop an audience for tomorrow. Vision Kino is partly financed by the German Federal Film Board (FFA) and the Federal Commissioner for Culture and the Media (BKM) and is constituted as a public-private partnership. It is financed on a project basis and applies for financing with a new budget every year.

Mark Reid

British Film Institute/ UK

Mark Reid trained to teach English and Media in the early 1990s, and after teaching in high schools for 7 years joined the British Film Institute to set up online courses for film and media teachers. In 2006 he took over the leadership of the BFI's education programmes, covering BFI Southbank, online provision, and research and strategy. In 2012 he led a consortium of European partners in Screening Literacy, a MEDIA-funded survey of film education in 33 European countries. Substantially the same group of people designed the Framework for Film Education, and now manage the CREATIVE MEDIA project Film Education: from Framework to Impact. Mark has some expertise in understanding what makes film education strategies successful, and why there are so few successful ones around!

The British Film Institute (BFI) was founded in 1933 and is a charity governed by a Royal Charter. The BFI combine cultural, creative and industrial roles, bringing together the BFI National Archive and BFI Reuben Library, film distribution, exhibition and education at BFI Southbank and BFI IMAX, publishing and festivals. The BFI award Lottery funding to film production, distribution, education, audience development and market intelligence and research. Film Forever is the BFI's five year strategic plan for 2012-2017 to support UK film. The plan covers all of the BFI's activities and is based around three priorities - education and audiences, support for the UK film industry and unlocking film heritage.

Lisbeth Arto Juhl Sibbesen

Danish Film Institute/
Filmcentralen/
Denmark

Lisbeth Arto Juhl Sibbesen is an editor of film education at the Danish Film Institute. Her main focus is DFI's streaming site Filmcentralen with more than 1900 short and documentary films and more than 600 study guides. She has also been developing and facilitating courses in film education throughout Denmark for many years. She has given many lectures and published several articles on film education and film analysis. Lisbeth studied French and Film & Media Science at the University of Aarhus, Denmark and Perpignan, France.

Filmcentralen is a streaming site making Danish shorts and documentaries as well as teaching materials available to primary and secondary schools. The Danish Film Institute's educational streaming site Filmcentralen aims to support the use of film in the classroom, promote the quality of teaching and generally improve children and young people's experience of film. The site offers, via login access, an extensive film catalogue, in particular of Danish shorts and documentaries. Furthermore, the site provides teaching materials, a film glossary and other learning resources. A number of functions enable teachers and students to share content in the form of playlists, clips, stills and more.

Anna Håkansson

Swedish Film Institute/ Sweden

Anna Håkansson is editor and communications officer working with children and youth programmes at the Swedish Film Institute. She also works as a theatre critic, specializing in theatre for children and youth at Sweden's biggest daily newspaper, Dagens Nyheter. She has a master's degree in film- and theatre studies at the University of Stockholm and has a background as a project manager of the Anti-racist Filmdays in Göteborg as well as Kombat, a Queer film festival held in Stockholm and Göteborg.

The Swedish Film Institute is working on numerous ways to increase the importance of film education in the Swedish school system, ranging from connecting study guides to the curriculum to exploring the cultural heritage through film history.

Ksenija Zubković

Slovenian Film Centre/ Slovenia

Ksenija Zubković was born in Rijeka. She holds a degree in Cultural Studies from the Faculty of Social Sciences of the University of Ljubljana. Shortly before and after finishing her studies, she had been collaborating with various media from Croatia and Slovenia in the field of culture, including portal Planet Siol.net, cultural weekly Pogledi of Ljubljana's Delo newspaper and the magazine for cinema and cinematic Kino! She is the author and co-author of translations of more scientific and other texts, mostly in the field of Human and Social Sciences. Since 2013 she has been working at the Slovenian Film Centre, a public agency of Slovenia, where she is in charge of developing film culture since 2017.

In 2016, the Government of the Republic of Slovenia adopted the Strategy for National Film Education Development. Building on the specificities of the film and audio-visual field, the strategy aims to ensure accessibility, systematic approach and a long-term perspective of film education within the curriculum and education programmes as well as within cultural institutions. In particular, it defines film education and the formal and informal ways of providing it.

Maya Reichert

Head of DOK.education / International Documentary Film Festival DOK.fest Munich/ Germany

Maya Reichert, cultural mediator and filmmaker herself, heads the year-round educational programme DOK.education at Germany's largest documentary film festival DOK.fest Munich since 2013. She studied filmmaking at the University of Television and Film Munich, where she worked from 2009 to 2017 in the department of Dramaturgy and Creative Writing in the chair of Prof. Doris Dörrie. As a lecturer, she teaches at universities such as LMU or HFF Munich, at various film initiatives as well as several education institutes for teachers. She is an active member of the "Round Table Film and School" of the Institute for School Quality and Educational Research, which is committed to strengthening media competence, film analysis and film practice in schools.

DOK.education is the year-round educational program of Germany's largest documentary film festival DOK.fest Munich. Beside the work in film reception, film practice, training for teachers, presence workshops for school classes and an annual youth film competition, the heart of this program is the "School for the Art of Seeing". All projects of DOK.education combine media literacy and cultural education in which the artistic narrative documentary film is always at the centre. Artistic documentaries tell real stories through cinematic images. They offer a wide range of approaches to encourage children and young people to observe closely, to see the art in filmmaking and to raise their awareness for different levels of truth and reality in cinematic storytelling.

Jasmin Topalušić

Art Psychotherapist Croatia/UK

Jasmin Topalušić holds a BA in Devised Theatre from Dartington College of Arts and a MA in Fine Art from Central Saint Martins College of Art and Design and in Art Psychotherapy from Roehampton University. She has extensive experience working with children, adolescents, young people with autism and vulnerable adults with mental health difficulties, disabilities and learning difficulties. She combines her knowledge in psychodynamic therapeutic training with other skills that she acquired through art and devised theatre practice. HCPC registered. BAAT member.

Art Therapy is a form of psychotherapy that uses art media as its primary mode of expression and communication. Within this context, art is not used as a diagnostic tool but as a medium to address emotional issues which may be confusing and distressing. Art therapists work with children, young people, adults and the elderly. Clients may have a wide range of difficulties, disabilities or diagnoses. These include emotional, behavioural or mental health problems, learning or physical disabilities, life-limiting conditions, neurological conditions and physical illnesses. Art therapy is provided in groups or individually, depending on clients' needs. It is not a recreational activity or an art lesson, although the sessions can be enjoyable. Clients do not need to have any previous experience or expertise in art.

Barbara Zupičić

Educational Programme Advisor Art-kino Rijeka/Croatia

Barbara Zupičić was born in Rijeka in 1973. From 2002 to 2014 she worked in the Department of Culture, City of Rijeka. She has been employed as educational programme advisor at Art-kino since 2014, where she is in charge of its educational programmes for children and youth, especially 'School at the Cinema' project aimed at familiarizing children from the early age with valuable films and film culture in general. Thanks to the School at the Cinema, more than 14 000 children and youngsters, ranging from kindergarten to grammar school age, visit Art-kino every year. Since 2017, she has been organising the Art-kino segment of the Tobogan Festival programme, held each year as part of the Children's House, one of the Rijeka 2020 - European Capital of Culture flagships.

School at the Cinema is the best-known project intended for children and youth organised by Art-kino. The programme is currently implemented at three different levels, depending on the age of participants (kindergartens, primary and secondary schools). The project was created in 2009 in collaboration with the Croatian Film Association, the City Department of Education and the City Department of Culture. The School at the Cinema programme consists of organised screenings of selected film titles for various ages, with accompanying introductory lectures on film language and films in the repertoire.

Rajko Petrović

Filmmaker, Head of Children & Youth Film Workshop Programme Free Zone Junior/Serbia

Rajko Petrović graduated in Film and TV Directing at the Faculty of Dramatic Arts in Belgrade. He also finished the school for documentary films Atelier Varan Paris, founded by Jean Rouch. Petrović was one of the founders of Atelier Varan Belgrade – Centre for Documentary Cinema, in which he worked as a director and producer. Since 2009 he was a selector and since 2011 director of the Free Zone Film Festival in Belgrade. Since 2011 he has been an associate professor in the MA program in Film at the Faculty for Media and Communications, Singidunum University Belgrade. In 2015 he established a boutique distribution company Five Stars Film Distribution, dedicated to the promotion and distribution of European art-house and documentary films oriented regionally to ex-Yugoslav countries.

Free Zone Junior was created in 2006 to initiate dialogue and expand knowledge on global social and political issues in Serbia, as well as to contribute to the development of critical thinking among the youth and increase their media literacy, tolerance, and deconstruction of prejudice and stereotype through the use of engaged films in education. So far four manuals for using film in elementary and high school education (accompanied by appropriate DVD compilations) have been published. A seminar, which is part of the program, was attended by more than 1300 elementary and high school teachers across Serbia so far, and the program has been repeatedly accredited by the Bureau for Education Development.

Tea Gabidzashvili

Project Manager / Kino Skolashi (Film at School) Georgian National Film Centre/ Georgia

Tea Gabidzashvili is a film critic and art project manager, author of films reviews and critics of cinema-process in the newspapers and magazines. She holds a MA degree from the Shota Rustaveli Theatre and Film Georgian State University and a certificate of the Caucasus University in Management of Cultural and Sporting Areas. From 1997 to 2033 she taught a course in the History of World Cinema at the Institute of Arts and Education in Kutaisi, Georgia. Since 2009. She has been the director of Cinema Club, a Georgian NGO which organised multiple projects in the field of Film Education. Since 2013 she has been working for the Georgian National Film Centre (GNFC) as the Film Promotion Department's education projects manager, initiator and manager of the project Film at School, and manager of projects European Film Clubs and Schools Licensing, and The Film Corner Reloaded - A Cultural Approach financed by the Creative Europe MEDIA.

Kino Skolashi (Film at School) was an initiative of the Georgian National Film Centre, which started in 2014. The aim of this project is to promote film culture, deepen the analytically thinking of children and young people and to develop their aesthetic perception skills. Within the framework of the project, weekly film screenings have been organized with follow-up discussion facilitated by young film specialists ("Cinema Missionaries") in about 1100 public schools of Georgia. The age of the target audience was 12-15. The films were selected based on consultations with diverse professionals (film historians, psychologists, educational experts) and include classical Georgian and foreign films.

IhmeFilmi is a Film Education organization that coordinates three different projects at the moment. At a national level it offers a series of film classics for high schools. This IhmeFilmi selection can be offered as a film course in high schools. The other national project is called IhmeSuomi. It targets students who are learning Finnish language and culture. The project offers four Finnish films and special learning packages to language teachers. These packages help students get acquainted with different dialects of the Finnish language as well as information about the history, culture etc. seen in the specific films.

Carla Augusto

Project Coordinator/ Cine Clube de Viseu/ Portugal

Carla Augusto holds a degree in Sciences of Education from the University of Coimbra and a MA degree in History of Education/ Comparative Education from the University of Lisbon, with the thesis "For Other Histories: women in the academic crises of the 1960s at the University of Coimbra". She was a member of the board of the Cine Clube de Viseu between 1997 and 2002, and since 2010 she has been a coordinator of the educational project of the Cine Clube de Viseu Pequeno Cinema. Between 1997 and 2008 she was assistant professor in the Catholic University of Viseu. She has multidisciplinary artistic interests, having participated as an amateur in various shows and productions of dance, theatre and cinema.

Established in 1955 by initiative of a group of cinephiles, the Cine Clube Viseu was, in its first phase of existence, focused on cultural intervention during the persistent dictatorship that lingered over the country. A pioneer, CCV combined screenings for the general public and children since its early beginnings, and all sessions were accompanied by support texts and lectures. Looking ahead to the dissemination and study of cinema, as art and culture, in its multiple expressions, during its history the CCV has developed several initiatives in the field of training, exhibitions, competitions, etc. Located in the Portuguese countryside, in a city with long periods of cultural numbness, the CCV is a cultural activity hub of great importance to several generations.

The aim is to identify a corpus of 20 short films suitable for this age group from the history of cinema. At the same time, each partner is developing lesson plans dealing with these films. The films as well as the documentation of the educational approaches will be published online to make everything available to children and kindergarten teachers.

Emilie Boucheteil

Director of the Cinema
Department of the French
Cultural Institute
– Institut français in Paris /
European Film Factory/France

Emilie Boucheteil has been working in the film industry for 15 years. She fell into films working for the Short Film Festival of Clermont-Ferrand. She then became an expert of exhibition and young audiences' policies at Europa Cinemas. She took her new position as Director of the Cinema Department of the French Cultural Institute - Institut français in Paris in 2018. She and her team are in charge of promoting French cinema abroad: a large catalogue of patrimonial and contemporary films is proposed (French and African films) as well as tools to help young filmmakers from southern and emergent countries coproduce their films with France (La Fabrique de cinéma and Aide aux cinémas du monde) and educational tools for teachers and youngsters, among which European Film Factory, a film educational programme headed by the Institut français.

European Film Factory is an innovative and pragmatic response to support film education in Europe backed by a €1 million grant from the European Union. The Institut français, the project leader, partnered with two entities at the forefront of digital innovation in schools: ARTE Education, a subsidiary of the European television channel behind the digital educational service Educ'Arte, and European Schoolnet, a non-profit organisation that brings together thirty-four Ministries of Education in Europe.

From September 2020, European Film Factory will give students aged 11 to 18 and teachers from all countries participating in the Creative Europe programme free online access to a catalogue of ten films from Europe's film heritage from 1954 to 2014.

Dovilė Butnoriūtė

Head of the Film Promotion Department of the Lithuanian Film Centre / Kino Klubai/ Lithuania

Dovilė Butnoriūtė holds a BS in Culture Management and MA in Integrated Communications from Vytautas Magnus University in Lithuania. Since 2015 she has been working for the Lithuanian Film Centre. For the past three years she has been in charge of film promotion and film education projects worldwide, public relations and representation of Lithuanian film industry at festivals and markets. She is also managing the coordination of film restoration processes and classic film distribution.

Film clubs in Lithuanian schools were launched as a part of the international project Licensing European Film Clubs and Schools, conducted by Film Literacy Europe from the United Kingdom. The pilot project started in Spain, Cyprus and Romania in 2015. Lithuania, Latvia and Georgia joined the international project in 2016. The project involves more than 200 Lithuanian schools from different districts which are screening films from a catalogue containing 51 titles. Screenings are usually held once a week after classes as a community thing. Every film club can choose the film from the catalogue available on the website.

The implementation of the pilot project was partly financed by the European Commission's MEDIA sub-programme, coordinated by the Lithuanian Film Center in cooperation with the Ministry of Education.

The aim of this project is to develop film education in Lithuania, paying more attention to children and young people, increasing the availability of European films, expanding the film base and encouraging Lithuanian schools to use them, testing film clubs as a model of film literacy and their relevance to Lithuania.

Edita Bilaver

Co-founder / Kids Meet Art/ Film for Kids at Hospitals/ Croatia

Edita Bilaver is a business consultant, co-founder of non-profit organisation Kids Meet Art engaged in film literacy programmes in Croatia and Board member of European Children Film Association - ECFA. She has many years of experience in the corporate sector and in the institutional field; she is an expert in strategic planning processes and in designing development strategies.

The international project Film for Kids at Hospitals is an online platform dedicated to film screenings and audience engagement for children at the hospitals, revalidation centres and children recovering at home. In 2011 the project was launched by the European Youth Film Festival (Antwerp, Belgium), with the help of Bednet, an organisation facilitating online streaming from the classroom to sick children at home or in hospitals. After several successful editions there was an urge to expand the project and connect with other European partners. The call for Promotions of European Works Online, launched by the European Commission, was the moment for teaming up with new partners Kids meet Art (Croatia) and BUFF (Sweden). An international platform was created, dedicated to film screenings and audience engagement for children in hospitals, with different sections for different age groups: 3+, 6+, 9+ and 12+, for parents of patients and hospital staff. In each country the project is presented in its native languages.

Gregg Young
